SUMMER OUTINGS.

Interest Aroused at Meeting Held Last Night.

Great interest was aroused for summer outings and "Camp Good Will" by the meeting of the summer outings committee held yesterday afternoon at 926 F street northwest. Members of the committee present were: Mr. John Joy Edson, chairman; Dr. George M. Kober, Col. George Truesdell, Mr. John B. Sleman, jr., Mr. Cuno H. Ru-dolph, Prof. B. T. Janney, Mr. Charles F. Weller and Mr. Wallace Hatch.

The treasurer reported that plans are now under way for a financial campaign such as will enable the committee to repeat its very satisfactory record of last year and develop the work to do still greater good than was possible in the first year that week outings were given.

It was reported that plans are now under way for a big outing at "Camp Good Will," May 30, when the people of Washington in general might view the camp and learn of its work; that a garden has been planted which will probably furnish vegetables for all dwellers of the camp during the summer; that a playground for the better en-tertainment of the children has been con-The committee voted to commence its original form of summer outing work, that is, car rides and day excursions, as soon as the money on hand permitted. Last year between two and three thousand chiidren were given single day outings, and the car rides, river trips, automobile excursions and picnic parties proved very popular.

"Camp Good Will" in its first season gave a week's outing to 464 children and mothers; a few of these visitors stayed longer periods and received even greater good. The committee, in discussing the question, "How long should the outings be made this year?" voted to leave this matter to the determination of the doctors and workers, with instructions that where in special cases good would probably result from a visit of two or more weeks that disccretion should be exercised and everything done that could be to secure the best results. A much larger number of people have ex-pressed their interest in "Camp Good Will" and the other forms of summer outlings work. As the hot weather approaches the people begin to think more carefully about the little ones who must remain in the city, under conditions far from ideal, throughout the summer months. The best that can be done for these little waifs is to give them the car rides, river or park excursions or a week at the outing camp. Already many people are co-operating in this phase of practical charity. Should others desire to questions will be answered and conferences arranged at the office of the committee, 926 F street northwest.

The committee placed itself on record at the meeting as being interested in and thoroughly aware of the need for a camp where might spend a few days or a week. The following resolution concerning this was proposed and unanimously carried: Resolved, That it is the sense of this committee that an effort should be made next year to establish a colored camp and that the secretary make an effort to enlist the active co-operation of the colored people to this end.

President E. L. Trudeau of Saranac Lake, N. Y., delivered his annual address yester-day, and many papers were read, largely on technical subjects. One of them out of the ordinary was that of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell on a study of the fear of cats and the power to recognize their presence unseen and unheard. He gave accumulated evi-dence received in letters from all parts of the world on the susceptibility of both men and women to the presence of cats, showing that many persons of nervous nature feel an invariable repugnance to the presence of a cat in the room. After reading the paper Dr. Mitchell declared that through what he considered in-disputable evidence he had been converted to belief in mind reading.

How to Improve the Capital.

To the Editor of The Star: I notice in a recent issue of The Star the suggestion that a national society for the beautification of Washington might save some valuable time by having literature prepared for distribution among new congressmen explaining just what the relation is between this city and the national government.

In 1894 I introduced in the Board of Trade a resolution to do that. It was adopted and a committee of three, consisting of John Joy Edson, Theodore W. Noyes and myself, were appointed, of which I was the chairman.

We prepared a very complete statement, which was read at length at a special meeting of directors, who adopted it and or-dered two thousand copies printed. It made a pamphlet of twenty-six pages, covering the ground fully from the location of the capital to 1894, showing what the citizens had done and what the national government had and had not done.

At the time I suggested that it should be stereotyped so additional copies might be had as needed, and that there should be a standing committee whose duty it should be to put a copy in the hands of each new member on his arrival, so that he might be informed and not commit himself against the District in consequence of his ignorance of the facts, but that was not done. The two thousand copies were distributed, one being sent to each member and senator, and that was the end of it. Not a copy is to be found now, except one that I have, and a few which I sent to some of the schools at the request of the school officials. I pre-sume it is safe to say that not one in twenty of the members ever read it. The fact is that the great mass of the members neither know nor care anything about the affairs of the District, and will not even read the facts when placed in their hands.

Members of Congress, as a general rule, are interested in but two subjects: First,
to secure an appropriation for their districts, which must be one of three things—

a court house, a post office building or a slice in the river and harbor bill, if there is a bay or creek on which money can be spent; and second, to make a speech on the prevailing political question of the day, whether it be the tariff, anti-imperialism. or now the trusts and the railroads, have it published in the Record and scattered among his constituents to show that he is sound on the party questions, and therefore is entitled to renomination and re-election. Of course, there are exceptions to this rule, but they are few and far between. In the Senate it is not so bad; Senators are here much longer and become better posted, and besides more of them own property here and therefore take more interest in the affairs of the District.

scribed the conditions as they exist today.

It is not the want of publications giving the facts, of which many have been published, but it is the indisposition of members to heed the facts, or even to listen to them when told. them when told.

The only way to remedy this state of affairs is to educate the general public, the

The only way to remedy this state of affairs is to educate the general public, the voters who elect the members. If they can be made to understand the real state of affairs there would be no trouble, for what they demanded would be done. I have never yet met a person in the country anywhere who, when the matter was explained to him, was not enthusiastic with the idea of having the national capital made what its founders designed it to be, the most magnificent, the cleanest and healthlest capital in the world; but as I said before, the only way in which that will ever be done is by educating and interesting the general public. If a national association can be formed to do that, by all means let it be done, the sooner the better.

The "Boss Horseshoers' " Side. To the Editor of The Star:

I noticed in Monday's Star a letter by Mr. H. S. Haight, styling himself a horse owner, urging that the horseshoers' strike should come to an end. His reason as set forth is not only that the 50 cents per day increase demanded is just, but that the journeymen have to work harder and longer and run a greater risk of life and limb than any other trade in the city. I would like to ask this horse owner if he is aware of the fact that the journeyman horse-shoers only work nine hours five days in the week and eight hours on Saturdays? Yet I have known a horse owner to call at the shop at 5 p.m. and get very angry if the boss and his journeymen would not stay another hour and shoe his horse after the day's work was finished. Perhaps this is what Mr. Haight means when he speaks of harder and longer hours. I would also remind him that I have worked at the business for forty four years and day is business. ness for forty-four years and during all that time I have never heard of a man being killed while shoeing a horse, nor have I ever heard of a horse having to be tied by three legs with one loose to be shod, as erroneously stated by him. Is it any wonder that the proprietor in the case he cited sang out "We have got him now?"

Has Mr. Haight any idea how many bricklayers, painters and other mechanics have lost their lives while in line of their duty in the past twenty years? I venture to say there have been more deaths in the above class than among the horseshoers above class than among the horseshoers since this art was first discovered. Now Mr. Haight says pay the demand of the journeyman. Is he willing to pay an increase for shoeing his horse? "The horse must be shod by horseshoers," he says. I would say to him that the public and those who own horses of any description need not be uneasy with reference to their horses being shod promptly and with the best of being shod promptly and with the best of skill and by men who know and understand their business. J. H. MITCHELL.

Records and statistics of death and disease were discussed in detail at the meeting this morning of the conference of state and provincial boards of health of North America. Dr. John S. Fulton of Baltimore, Md., president of the organization, in this connection brought up the question of alleged "graft" in state and municipal health States circuit court of appeals for the eighth circuit submitted by Mr. H. J. Bone and Mr. D. R. Hite for the petitioners, and by Mr. James S. Botsford for the respondoffices. He said that officials had in some instances been discovered selling for small sums of money the names of persons afflicted with consumption and other diseases to certain firms who wished to sell remedies. He advocated the recommendation to state authorities that such records be guarded closely and opened only to persons who have a legal right to inspect them.

From present indications the new cars of the Washington Electric Company, the running of which will result in the change of schedule recently protested against by the citizens of this part of the District, will be in operation by Sunday next. This will mean that a transfer station will be estab-lished at the foot of 11th street southeast, as the heavy cars will not be permitted to cross the Anacostia bridge by the District Commissioners, the structure being deemed unsafe. The railway company has, it is understood, purchased a building lately in use at the railway exhibit for use as a transfer station. The officials of the road have given assurances that under the new arrangement, plenty of cars, will be operarrangement plenty of cars will be oper-ated on a fast schedule for the residents of the villages in this section of the District.
